He then travels to the police station where he meets fellow Thai lawman Pong, and learns that the children are being held in Sydney by thieves. When he arrives in Sydney, he learns that he is competing for the friendship of Sidney and his friend Rita, who is working in a tattoo parlour. During a period of 24 hours, the stolen elephant and its offspring appear in public. Kham and Pong follow them. The thieves take them to Kham's fellow lawman, Ton, who is also looking for the stolen elephant. After discovering the thieves' hideout, Kham and Ton must find the real elephant, a task which is completed when Kham forces the criminals to fight over the elephant's food. However, the lawmen fail to capture the thieves and both Kham and Ton are fired. Kham then returns to Thailand to be married to his fiancée and be taken back to face court. However, the thieves have already stolen the elephant. The film ends with an extended coda set in Scotland where Ton returns to rescue the elephant from the man who was paid to steal it.
